When Basra Sadiq realizes that catalogue modeling isn't enough to pay her college tuition, she reluctantly becomes a high-end escort. With her exotic Somalian looks, there are plenty of men willing to pamper her, showering her with money and expensive gifts. It's not long before she becomes hooked on the extravagant lifestyle.

She joins Choice, an elite international escort agency in Manhattan, where she works under the name Dove. In spite of her "no sex" rule, affluent patrons are willing to pay top dollar for just a few hours in her company. Dove is in high demand.

After months of wild parties and expensive vacations, Dove finds it harder to hold her slot as "top chocolate." There is plenty of competition from girls who are willing to do any and everything to make a buck. Dove realizes that she's got to do whatever is necessary to stay on top. However, matters become complicated when she falls in love with Grayson Charles, an abstract artist.

Dove would like to leave behind the escort business, but that proves to be harder than she expected. Not only has she become accustomed to the perks of her job, but she's also boosting Grayson's career by convincing her clients to buy his artwork. Even after she marries Grayson, she hasn't been able to break free from the escort service. How long will she be able to balance her life as the wife of one man and the fantasy of many?
